DESIGN

Old Overton Completes Full Feature Renovation

Jerry Pate Design recently completed a renovation of the greens, tees, and bunkers at The Old Overton Club in Birmingham, Alabama. Co-designed by Jerry Pate and Tom Fazio, the course was originally completed in 1993 and was awarded The Best New Private Course in the country by Golf Digest. During the renovation, JPD massaged the green contours to make them more playable for the new TifEagle bermudagrass, which replaced the original bentgrass. The bunkers were completely reshaped using the Better Billy Bunker drainage system; they now have flatter, wider bottoms and lower flashes of sand. This design will allow for improved maintainability, especially given the frequency of heavy thunderstorms in central Alabama. Additionally, several bunker locations were adjusted slightly to improve their strategic interest. The tees were re-levelled and sodded with TifGrand bermudagrass. Finally, nearly five acres of turfgrass was replaced with native fescues in order to both alleviate maintenance costs in out-of-play areas and also add aesthetic texture to the course. The complete renovation was a collaboration with the Old Overton maintenance team and Southeastern Golf Construction. The entire project, from course closure to course reopening, took only three months.
